

Facts over gut feeling

Assessment of the central integration platform at Trisa AG

Assessment of the central integration platform

- > Trisa AG operates a central middleware that connects seven core systems, from ERP and production planning to logistics. Since the software in use no longer receives security updates, Trisa wanted to proactively determine whether the platform, which had grown over many years, was still the right solution for today's requirements. adesso conducted a structured assessment for this purpose, providing a reliable basis for the upcoming technology decision.

CUSTOMER BENEFITS

- > A reliable basis for decision-making instead of gut feeling for the upcoming technology decision
- > A clear, consolidated picture of the current situation, including technical and organizational areas for action
- > Concrete, evaluated options for action with a roadmap for sustainable data quality
- > Collaborative approach: The distributed knowledge of their own employees was made visible and bundled adesso didn't just sell us a standard solution; they listened first and really understood how our system landscape works. This allows us to make decisions based on facts today. And that gives us confidence for the future.
